PREFACE

Since 1998, Dr. Jon Michael Spencer has donated more than 1,100 books from his personal research library as well as selected journals, microfilm of historic papers and research documentation to the L. Douglas Wilder Library at Virginia Union University.

The subject areas reflect his specialties in the history and theology of African-American sacred and secular music, African history and slave culture, and African-American history and sociology. The collection includes a significant number of hymnals from various denominations. The former University of Richmond music and American studies professor is now a professor of religious studies at the University of South Carolina. He earned a music degree from Hampton University and completed graduate work in music composition as well as theology at Washington University and Duke Divinity School.

Spencer donated this extensive collection to VUU for several reasons. Until the summer 2000, he was a resident of Richmond and VUU was the city's African American university. As well, VUU has a School of Theology and Spencer has published extensively in the area of religion. Finally, his architect father, John H. Spencer, participated in the design of the Wilder library. It is in the elder Spencer's name that Dr. Spencer has donated his collections.

The books are housed in the library's closed collections. It is Spencer's wish that his collection not circulate, but instead be used as a reference collection.

In addition to the books, Spencer has given the library his research files containing the materials he has gathered in the writing of 13 books and many book chapters, articles and papers.

Featured in these files are copies of diaries belonging to Verna Arvey, the wife of William Grant Still, called the "dean of Negro composers"; a book manuscript by his daughter, Judith Still, and microfilm of the William Grant Still and Verna Arvey Papers.

As an alumnus of Hampton University, Spencer has collected research files on soprano Dorothy Maynor, another Hampton alumnus; R. Nathaniel Dett, Hampton's choir director, and historic photographs from the Hampton University archives.

No appointment is necessary to use the Spencer collection. Please direct your inquiries to the reference librarian. This bibliography will be available online through the Wilder Library web page:
