VUU HOSTS PANTHERFEST SPRING LIVING AND LEARNING WEEK

By Justice Miller

Pantherfest is a major event at Virginia Union University held in the Spring where alumni, faculty, and students come together to celebrate Panther pride and excellence. The theme for this year’s festival is “work hard play harder.”

Pantherfest kicked off with a cookout at Henderson Square on VUU campus. Everyone was all smiles despite the simmering hot weather. DJ Groovy kept the event lively with music, while students danced and competed in outdoor competitions such as tug of war and sack races, for the chance to win interesting prizes. Even a fashion show with a business outfit theme was held. Later that evening SGA held a student-led pep rally in Barco-Stevens Gym. The rally included a variety of activities such as games, line dances, and a pie eating contest.

On day two, The Professional Development & Networking Event hosted by Alumni Relations & Enterprise at the Living and Learning Center was a great success! At the event students had the opportunity to have their resumes reviewed by experienced professionals, get professional headshots taken, and develop their professional skills to be competitive in today’s job market. The event was also a great opportunity for students to make connections with alumni in their chosen field and gain insight into the working industry.

“I have enjoyed myself this Pantherfest. Along with networking and getting the chance to speak to alumni and put myself out there in an educational and business environment.”- D’Anna Davis SGA member and Executive Intern.

The event was an invaluable opportunity for VUU students to gain the skills and connections necessary for professional success.

In the evening, the SGA held a presidential debate in order to allow the student body to get to know the candidates running for President. The debate was conducted in an open forum, allowing students to ask questions directly to the candidates. After a brief introduction each candidate discussed their platform and were followed by a brief question-and-answer session with the audience. The SGA presidential debate was well-attended and a great way for students to make an informed decision about the election.

VUU held their Spring 2023 Career Fair at the Living and Learning Center on day three. Attendees had the opportunity to participate in on-the-spot interviews, and network with over 40+ potential employers as prospective interns, full-time employees or graduate students. Additionally, the event provided a great opportunity for students to hone their networking skills and develop relations with potential employers. Some Panthers were even given job offers right away!
I just landed a job on the spot with Mending Fences and I am super excited! Thank you Pantherfest and thank you VUU," said Georgia Bello VUU Senior Social Work Major.

"I also got a job from Mending Fences and I can't wait to get to work! Go Panthers!," said Tamara Tolbert VUU Junior Social Work Major.

With the help of the event Panthers were able to gain the knowledge and resources necessary to further their career.

Following the Career Fair VUU held an Etiquette Brunch & Panel Discussion at the Living & Learning Center sponsored by Genworth Financial. It was an amazing opportunity for students, alumni, and guests to come together and learn valuable lessons in the importance of professional etiquette and present tips on dressing professionally, maintaining composure, and interacting with people in the workforce. At this event VUU welcomed An'Jou C. White ‘87, Thomas A. White ‘16, Erin Keyes ‘21,’22, and Bianca Lockamy ‘22 as our guest speakers and alumni.

An’Jou C. White, President & CEO About the Books Accounting & Consulting, discussed her transfer experience from Michigan State to Virginia Union and attributed VUU to changing her life.

"VUU was awesome. It’s helped me throughout my career. And has definitely helped with my accounting business. Despite the shock of how small the school was, I realized that was so much better for me."

Thomas A. White, Software Developer Leidos, shared his experience on his initial struggle with academic motivation and that it was a previous alumni at Union who mentored him and drove him to achieve academic success and graduating here at Virginia Union. Then a couple months later he was able to join the workforce through a VUU conference.

“Coming to Union, just being around predominantly black people, and having that family environment was monumental. I feel I grew a lot and the additional things that you learn from Union helped mold me into who I am today. So I definitely thank, Union a lot.”

Erin Keyes, Customer Experience Representative Comcast, spoke about her experience at VUU as an active student and member of SGA and School of Theology. And eventually going on to be an active member in the Alumni Association.

“I enjoy building my community in extracurriculars. Just by having community, having your people - because life is not easy so you have to have your people, your support around you and that’s why I love my VUU.”

Bianca Lockamy, Executive Assistant VCU Nursing Student, shared her insights on striving to work in the medical field and how Union not only put her in a position to succeed but helped her to find what exactly she wanted to do in the medical field as well, unlike the school she transferred from previously (UVA-Wise). She also went from campus president of SAAC to President of CIAA SAAC, as a former athlete here at Union.

"Union gave me a voice for people like me, and I am passionate about giving back. You do not have to have everything together. After graduating I currently do not have a job in my field, but that simply means my path is different and it may take longer than others and that is okay. The panel discussion was an inspirational and educational experience for all who attended. Through the panel's experiences, we were able to learn how to be successful in our chosen professional fields and how to maintain an impeccable reputation in the professional world. The Virginia Union University Royal Court Pageant was held at the Living & Learning Center. Students and alumni attended the event to witness the coronation of the 2023-2024 Royal Court. The students chosen for the Royal Court are selected based on grade point average, campus involvement, and leadership qualities. Pantherfest came to its conclusion as the Virginia Union University Spring Football game kicked off under a bright and sunny sky. The cheerleaders and band revved up the crowd while the tantalizing smell of BBQ wafted to the stands. Hovey Field was filled with students, alumni, faculty, staff, and other community members who came out to support the Panthers.

Virginia Union University’s School of Arts and Sciences hosted its Science and Engineering Summer Institute. The five-week program, funded by a $500K grant from Altria Group, gave incoming, first-year students the opportunity to gain real-world, hands-on experience with STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) related projects.

“As technology continues to evolve, the demand for STEM educators and workers increases,” said Dr. Hakim J. Lucas, President and CEO of VUU. “VUU is a proud recipient of this grant from Altria, which will allow us to shape the next wave of innovators in the STEM field.”

Seven rising VUU freshmen from regions across Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and Pennsylvania participated in the program: Joseph Allen, Hailey Blackwell, Jayden Evans, Tyrice Fowlkes, Dakota Inniss, Micah Walker and Jonathan Woodhouse.

During the summer institute, students participated in STEM-focused labs and workshops, working on 3D printers and building amplifiers, allowing them to gain knowledge and experience in electrical and mechanical engineering. After successfully completing the program, students received scholarships of up to $10,000 in tuition aid for the upcoming year.

Dr. Francis Mensah, Associate Professor of Physics and Interim Chair of the Department of Natural Sciences, served as the manager of the summer institute, partnering with Dr. Ahkinyala Cobb-Abdullah, then Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences and program supervisor and Valencia Clark, Project Coordinator.

“By hosting this summer program, we hope to not only give students a jumpstart in their studies, but also help them with the cost of attending the university,” said Mensah. “We hope to increase the visibility of VUU and attract more students who are interested in STEM fields.”

Joseph Allen, a first-year Cyber Security student from Maryland, was a part of the cohort.
“Prior to applying for this program, I thought our classes were going to be mostly book work,” Allen said. “I was surprised at how hands on most of our projects were and how involved the students were.”

To conclude the summer institute, the university held a closing reception to celebrate the students’ achievements and completion of the program.

"I would encourage other students to just do it," Allen said. "Get a head start on college courses. It will benefit your education going forward."
